++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells and, in west, a few showers.

Today:
A chilly start to a dry and mostly sunny morning, however increasing cloud may bring a few showers to western parts through the afternoon. Freshening southwesterly winds. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Mainly dry with clear spells this evening and again later in night. However cloudier conditions with a brief spell of heavy rain is expected soon after midnight. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Thursday:
A bright start with some sunny spells but cloud increasing through the afternoon with some patchy rain in west. Outbreaks of rain spread northeast in evening as southerly winds increase. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Rather cloudy Friday with outbreaks of rain. Then a mostly cloudy weekend with patchy light rain and drizzle and extensive hill fog, best of any brighter spells in west.
